Accreditation Programme for ENTREPRENEURIAL MOTIVATION TRAINERS (Final Phase) 4th – 8th December 2017

Entrepreneurial Motivation Training (EMT) has been one of the most important inputs in the overall programme of Entrepreneurship Development. The training in Entrepreneurial Motivation, besides increasing need for achievement of potential entrepreneurs, also helps them develop coping ability, tolerance and ability to influence support system. EMT as part of total entrepreneurship development programme further increases receptiveness of participants regarding inputs relating to Enterprise Launching and Management. Accordingly the role of the EMT has been crucial for not only creating/setting up the venture/organization but also for its growth and excellence.

The first phase of the accreditation programme was mainly designed to help the participants to internalize the concept and process of entrepreneurial motivation training and provide the ability & competence to plan and conduct EMT training.

During the interface it is expected that the participants have practiced the learned skills in field situation either as a trainer or a co-trainer.

The Final phase, therefore, is designed to share such experiences and clearing the doubts if any. Through this process, an attempt will be made to help the participants to internalize the earlier process through self-reflection and discussion with the trainers and fellow participants. A major emphasis has been given on scoring reliability of Thematic Apperception Test. Apart from this, the participants are expected to make their profile in the context of learning and training.
